Winterthur museum named #1 in nation

Winterthur Museum, Library and Park, located in Wilmington, was once the estate of Henry Francis du Pont, who opened it to the public in 1972. Winterthur features a mansion preserving a 19th-century manor house and a collection of American decorative arts from 1640 to 1940. It is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on weekends.

Winterthur is also the home of the Winterthur Estate, a 700-acre property that was purchased by du Pont in 1937. The estate includes the mansion and its associated buildings, as well as a museum, library, and research center.

Winterthur is one of the most popular destinations for visitors to Delaware and is a major tourist attraction. The museum is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on weekends.

Winterthur receives $10,160 grant

The Institute of Museum and Library Services has given Winterthur Museum, Library and Park a $10,160 grant to support the museum's ongoing efforts to preserve and protect its collections.

Winterthur has a reputation for thorough research into conservation methods that influence international standards, said Winterthur Senior Object Conservator Brian Beulitz in a press release. "We hope that our continued work on methods to prevent silver and copper alloys from tarnishing will continue that tradition."

Winterthur houses a permanent collection of American decorative art made between 1640 and 1900, said Gregory Akins, head of Conservation at the museum. "We've been collecting objects and applying new ones to our collection, while Winterthur continues to develop new research and strategic approaches to the preservation of our artifacts."
